Stylistic VR platformer to hit Oculus Store

AMSTERDAM, NL, January 31 - On January 31, KIN will become available for the Oculus Rift. For just $14.99 you can pick up this interesting indie VR platformer game in the Oculus Store. KIN is a 3rd person platformer with combat elements that will have the player traverse the remnants of an ancient civilization on a distant planet. Throughout their journey through alien landscapes, a story will unfold.

Available for GearVR and Oculus Rift

Just before the holidays, KIN already became available to GearVR users at a pricepoint of just $9.99. Now Oculus Rift owners can also get their hands on the game. Being a platformer game with a 'birds-eye view' and an interesting and distinct visual style, the game certainly adds to the available content for VR gamers.

The game holds an abstract aesthetic that has become characteristic for the studio through their earlier VR experiences such as APEX and Surge. The developers wanted to "create a game that would not use VR as a gimmick, yet at the same time still utilizing the added benefit of playing in virtual reality". Moreover, "the world had to be inviting, colourful and unique, getting the player excited to explore". And KIN does just that: lively colours, intuitive gameplay and interesting level design set the tone for KIN, in which the player moves through the world as a mysterious, tiny girl with big hair, clad in a bright dress. Defeating enemies and solving puzzles, she leaps from platform to platform, travelling through different landscapes, each with their own atmosphere.
